LURE OF EUROPE LOSES LUSTRE FOR LOCAL TRAVELER

The desire to live the life of the Europeans has waned for C. Edward Pedersen, member of the Nevada City high school faculty, who toured the principal cities of this country as well as the major countries of Europe during the past summer, and he is glad to be back in the state of California—"where the entrie world would like to be".

Mr. Pedersen gives a brief but vivid picture of his trip which is summed up as follows:

"We travelled thru France, Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Germany, Holland, England, Scotland, and Ireland All these countries are rapidly becoming more like the situation we find in America. The people are courteous at all times to their visitors and, the American traveller certainly constructs a new atttiude toward the "foreigners".

"Italy seems to be the most prosperous and active country, because Moussolini requires that each individual work. No beggars are seen to any extent and even the many soldiers are occupied with guarding trains, tilling the soil, etc. Italian history is in evidence thruout the country and in Rome especially, the sightseeing person is continually attentive to the countless number of interesting things which are pointed out by the guides.

"We found the Passion Play at Oberammergau, Bavaria to be intensely interesting and worthwhile even tho the distance to the little mountain town and the weather conditions were not inviting. The production leaves a most profound impression upon Christian and non-Christian alike and a great deal of credit is due the citizens there for keeping up their tradition in such a glorious manner.

"Berlin seems to be the most up-to-date city and most of the architecture shows the "modernistic" touch. The city is extremely clean and woe be to the citizen who is caught dropping bits of paper and refuse on the streets.

"Switzerland has its magnificent mountain scenery, Holland its quaintness and the British Isles are filled with tradition.

"The effects of the late war are not in evidence, but thousands of monuments are seen commemorating the brave heroes who fell n the battlefield for the cause they thought right. Each little town in all of the countries—no matter how small—has a tablet with the names of the men (sometimes all the young men in the community) who went away and never returned. The loss of life due to the war was tremendous thruout Europe and thousands upon thousands of the non-combatants have died since the conflict because of the intense mental stress.

"The trip was exceedingly interesting thruout, but our return to California was looked forward to. If the majority of the Europeans had their own way they would come to the United States and the same thing applies to the Americans and California. We can feel happy that our state is looked upon so greatly by so many people".

COUNTY ASSESSOR ENTERS ON NINTH TERM IN OFFICE

Henry C. Schroeder r,elected for the ninth time to the office of county assessor, has received singular press notice throughout the state. Seldom does such distinguished honor come to an individual as has been the lot of Mr. Schroeder, and such accomplishments are well deserving of mention. A leading newspaper of the state capitol last week had the following to say of our local townsman:

Henry C. Schroeder was elected assessor of Nevada County for the ninth consecutive time. At most of the elections he has had no opposition, but when opposed always won by a big vote. He has served the county as assessor since 1898. For four years prior to that time he was a deputy assessor.

THE NUGGET OFFICE TO CHANGE HANDS

The editorship of The Nugget fell this week upon the shoulders of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ficon who are negotiating for the purchase of the paper and will take formal possession within the next two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ficon are old friends and former business associates of the Willoughby's in Sonoma County. They spent two weeks in Nevada City three years ago as guests at the Willoughby home and fell in love with the town and surroundings.

For the past three years Mr. and Mrs. Ficon have been publishing a paper in Orange Cove, Fresno County. They instituted the paper in that city which sold out July 1. Mr. and Mrs. Ficon spent a week in July looking over the local field but wished to investigate other propositions before deciding to locate here. They returned on Sunday after having spent nearly two months traveling over the state and decided that Nevada City was most desirable.

Mr. and Mrs. Ficon are thoroughly trained newspaper people. They have the faculty of making friends wherever they go and Nevada City can feel proud to welcome them into her midst. A daughter, Miss Inga, will attend the local high school and will assist in the newspaper office at odd hours.

Ill health has forced me to retire from the strenuous life of newspaper work but my heart and interest will remain in the business and I will assist the Ficons at odd times in the publishing of The Nugget. The new editors plan to follow the same policy laid out by The Nugget editors since its inception. Mining news will be featured and the mining men will receive the same interest as they have always. Mr. Ficon was formerly interested in mines in Idaho.

In retiring from the field as editor and publisher of The Nugget, I wish to express my deep appreciation to the many, many friends of The Nugget. This includes the faithful advertisers, subscribers and correspondents. In the latter catagory I wish to make special mention of Ed Uren on whom I have leaned very heavily in the past few weeks for feature stories In the country correspondence Mrs. Kate Sullivan leads the list. Writing nearly a column every week of the happenings of French Corral and accepting no compensation. Her little foot note messages to the weary and heartsore editor have been a great source of comfort during the past three months.

Nevada City has so endeared itself to me in the past four years that I plan to live here with my two children as nowhere have I found the loyalty and friendship that is found in this little city. So, unless circumstances force me to leave this lovely spot I need not say even Au re-voir.

MINE TRANSACTIONS OF GREAT IMPORTANCE TO NEVADA COUNTY

With a combined capitalization of $2,500,000, two mining corporations were formed last week to operate in the Nevada County field, a state charter being granted by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan.

The first is the Gold Star Mining and Development Company organized under the laws of Nevada and capitalized at $1,500,000. The resident agent of the company is J. E. Tudor of Grass Valey and the property to be developed comprises the Maynough holdings at Newtown

The second company to be granted a charter is the Shenandoah Gold Mining Company with headquarters at Los Angeles and capitalized at $1,000,000. The directors are William Haynes, Laura Haynes and G. A. Haynes of Los Angeles.

It is understood the company holds options on extensive Mayflower properties at Canada Hill east of Nevada City.

NEVADA CO. PRODUCTS CREATE GREAT INTEREST

J. R. Davis and E. A. Breckenridge are to be congratulated on the Nevada county exhibits at the State Fair now in session at Sacramento.

The exhibit is distinguished for its unusual admixture of fruits, vegetables, nuts, citrus fruits and gold, together with pictures of the largest pear tree in the world which stands in a Grass Valley yard and the most peculiar tree in the world "the water tree", a freak of nature which pors two and one half gallons of water per minute out of its trunk. This tree, can be seen on the lower Colfax road about three miles from Grass Valley.

The noble and ancient pear tree is on the property of Mrs. J. Bendorf and is 75 years old, has always been free from pear blight, has attained a height of 57½ feet and produces 3 tons of pears annually. Nevada City Chamber of Commerce and manager of the Nevada County Promotion Board, has collected some interesting relics of the days of '49 which add a further touch of interest to the display.

The mineral display, guarded in a safe, reminds us that there are mines in Nevada county, which have been running continuously since 1863, some of which are over a mile deep.

A paper mill, display, and the new turpentine industry at Nevada City arrest attention especially the demonstration of obtaining the turpentine from certain kinds of pine trees, and the various kinds of by-products such as rosins, gums etc., which also find ready marekt.

Boughs from nut trees are used effectively in the scheme of decoration.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL OPENS WITH LARGE ENROLLMENT TOTAL

Nevada City grammar school opened its doors Monday morning for the fall semester, with a total enrollment of 238, which is expected to increase from day to day as the first few weeks of school roll by.

This is a considerable increase over the enrollment last year, according to Principal Walter A. Carlson, who was well pleased with the showing and stated that he believed the number of students would reach upwards of the three hundred mark before the end of the first semester. Some of the students have not as yet returned from their summer vacation, while other families will be moving into the city for the school term.

New Subject Added

Mr. George, bandmaster at the Nevada and Grass Valley high schools, has organized a band in the grammar school, which he will conduct devoting part of the forenoons to this group. Lack of instruments is making the organization work rather slow, but splendid co-operation is being shown by patrons of the school who are offering various instruments for the organization's use.

Two New Teachers

Two new teachers have been added to the staff, Miss Doris Nightingale seventh and eighth grade, who will specialize in music, and Miss Doras Smith, sixth grade teacher.

The other members of the grammar school faculty include Miss Gertrude Goyne, Miss Savory Ford, Mrs. Mary Warnecke, Miss Elizabeth Hennan, Miss Elizabeth Janes and Mrs. Kate McCormack.

MURCHIE MINE PRODUCES MORE HIGH GRADE ORE

"There's gold in them thar hills" is a melodramatic expression one often sees quoted in print. It is an expression that might quite appropriately have been used however by the intrepid '49er who viewed the Nevada City and Grass Valley basins from any of the adjoining hillsides, because there has been millions of the yellow metal taken from them and there are undoubtedly millions left untouched.

That there is still gold in these hills is being demonstrated every day by the Murchie Mine, which was closed for nearly twenty years, after two or three unsuccessful attempts to reopen it, but which is now producing ore from which the sulphides alone are worth around $300 per ton.

Bonanza ore at the Hoge properties is of such ordinary occurrence these days that it is no longer an event to get much excited about. But, just to show that this excellent vein is keeping up its reputation, Arthur Hoge, Jr., was exhibiting last week a large specimen showing a band of gold two inches in width running through the rock.

Yet, to the ordinary observers eye the manzanita and pine covered surface 300 feet above this glistening vein of sulphide and gold laden ore, there is not the slightest indication of the wealth that lies so closely below.

So, it behooves us to stress again, as we have in the past, that in this mineralized district the making of a real, producing mine depends upon proper intensive development coupled with a modicum of good judgement, which we all allow goes with any successful business venture.

Genial Jim Rolph surely won the hearts of the voters in his campaign throuot the state. His splendid record as mayor of San Francisco won the confidence of the people and they are lookin gforward to four years of prosperity in the state

Another thing Rolph will have a lieutenant governor in sympathy with him and willing to work with him. Our best wishes go to both.

Nevada County's vote for C. C. Young was a vote of approval for the wonderful work of the highway commission for the Tahoe-Ukiah Highway. Grave fear has been expressed that this important artery of travel would be shelved as it had been in one of the previous administrations. This is not true as Mayor Rolph has pledged to finish the highway under schedule. It is well however for the Board of Supervisors and Chambers of Commerce to show that they are interested in the project.

Senator Frank Merriam, Republican Candidate for Lieutenant Governor in a personal talk with the editor expressed his appreciation for the cooperation given by The Nugget and promised to lend his support to important mining legislation to come before the senate this winter. As speaker of the Senate he loses his vote except in case of a tie but his influence will count for much.

Nevada County's vote of approval for "Jerry" Seawell's re turn to the Legislature as Asemblyman from the Third District shows their splendid loyalty to a friend. Needless to say it was greatly appreciated and "Jerry" will not forget those who stood by him so royally. He will return to the Assembly this winter with the interests of Nevada County at heart and do all in his power for them.

AN APPRECIATION

To All Who Helped The Nugget With Election Returns

Wage Constant Warfare on Dreaded Tsetse Fly

The insect most feared in Africa is the dreaded tsetse fly. This creature sucks the blood of cattle and infects them with the germ of sleeping sickness. It will at times attack humans. It is a sight-hunter instead of a smell-hunter. This was proved when thousands of them were caught in nets and marked with small spots of paint so that they could be identified. As these paint-marked flies were caught days later in the nets of the fly-hunters, their distribution proved how widely the flies range for their food. Some of them were painted either over their eyes or over their antennae, which are believed to be the organs of smell. Thus groups of artificially blinded flies and of flies deprived of the sense of smell were turned loose and watched. The insects without smell went about their evil work just the same; found cattle to bite and sucked the blood of these animals like normal insects. The blinded flies, on the other hand, seemed unable to find cattle or to feed. This proved that they were guided only by sight.

Africans Heavy Tea Drinkers

South Africa probably consumes more tea per head of population than any other country in the world. The Englishman's 4 o'clock tea is an insignificant habit compared with the constant demand for tea that obtains there. Most everybody has a cup of tea before rising, and this is followed very shortly by tea at breakfast. In every office and shop, and even in most factories, all the employees knock off for a few minutes at 10:30 for tea and again at 3:30, and in between these times there is a cup of tea with lunch. Returning home from work in the evening one is greeted by a cup of tea, and after dinner has been digested the kettle is again singing on the cooker for more tea. Besides this routine, fresh tea is brewed for every visitor to almost every house and also for customers in most offices.

Perfection in Acoustics

An even more delicate test than the dropping of a pin has been made on acoustic properties. When engineers were trying out the audibility of the sound reflector on the stage of the Hollywood bowl they dropped one No. 10 bird shot (weighing slightly more than one-thousandth of an ounce) 8 inches on a kettledrum. The sound was heard throughout the bowl. When dropped only one-quarter inch listeners in three-quarters of the bowl heard the shot fall. The reflector is the half shell of a huge cone, 45 feet at the front of the stage and 18 feet high at the rear. It is made of 36 tons of structural steel, padded inside and out with asbestos sheets. No electrical amplifiers are necessary.

A Connoisseur

Mr. Psmear (the artist)—I wonder if you've ever seen any of my pictures?

Mrs. Gazippe—I reckon I have. I've seen about everything on the screen; I'm a regular movie hound.

TODAY'S WHOPPER

The Flapper—No, no more dates for a while.

Her Boy Friend—Why, I wanna know?

The Flapper—Because, since books are cheaper, I am going to buy more and spend my evenings at home improving my mind and give my neck a rest.

Education Something Fierce

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked the mistress of a fashionable home of the prospective negro maid.

"Dey was too highbrow fer me," she answered. "Dey was always fightin' an' fussin', an it sho' kept me busy runnin' from de keyhole to de dictionary, so Ah got mad an' quit."

SURE SIGN

"Is Jim making fair money these days?"

"I'll say he is—he's a street car conductor."

It Did Happen

His wife began to laugh at him.

"You silly," she said; "fancy being superstitious after all these years! Why, do you remember the first time we met? We walked under a ladder, and you said you were sure something horrible would happen to you."

"Well?" said he.

Might as Well

Sporter—Yes, I'm very fond of hunting.

Speffer—It's a pleasure to meet a great sportsman.

Sporter—But, you see, I'm a member of the society for the protection of animals. So to satisfy that sporting spirit I use blank cartridges.

No Way Out of It

Aunt Lucy—I should think you'd be ashamed to be seen wearing such a short skirt.

Philippa—I do blush every time I put it on. But what can I do? If I don't wear it everyone will think I'm bowlegged.

Statesman's Son Hanged

Philip Spencer, a midshipman in the American navy, was hanged at sea while his father, John C. Spencer of New York, was secretary of war in the cabinet of President Tyler. Young Spencer was convicted of attempting to organize a mutiny on the U. S. S. Somers with a view of converting her into a pirate ship. On December 1, 1842, Spencer, the boatswain's mate and a seaman were hanged at the yardarm of the brig-of-war while she was on her way from Liberia to New York via St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands. The execution took place about 525 miles out from St. Thomas and the Somers arrived at the Brooklyn navy yard thirteen days later. A naval court inquiry and a court-martial decided that the commander of the vessel, Alexander Sidell Mackenzie, had simply performed his duty.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Perfect Safeguard

"Sandy, my son," said the fond father, "ye're getting marriet the morn, so I ha'e bocht ye a present ye'll find verra usefu'."

"Thank ye, father," murmured Sandy.

But when the old man produced a mousetrap and laid it on the table Sandy almost fell backward with amazement.

"Whatever's that for?" he inquired.

"Weel," his father explained, "if there's one thing a wumman hates waur a mouse it's a moosetrap. Jist ye set it last thing at nicht, pit your loose money oot o' your pooch under the spring, and it's shair to be there in the morning."—London Answers.

Timber in Commerce

Not so many hundreds of years ago each nation had to depend largely on its own timber to satisfy the ordinary needs of its population. Today, modern transportation permits timber to be marketed at greater distances from its source, says Forests and Mankind. China obtains large amounts of timber from North America, and South Africa gets much of hers from northern Europe. But in the long run it is best economy for a nation to grow timber on its own soil and to put to use those rough, less fertile sections where for one reason or another agriculture is either impossible or unprofitable.

Onion Is Fastidious

The lowly onion, popular as a food even back to the days when the pyramids were built, may be common, but it is, nevertheless, a highly particular vegetable, so far as growing conditions are concerned.

It requires especially good soil of high fertility and well drained. It will not grow if weeds be present, and it needs cold, moist soil while growing, and warm, dry conditions at maturity.

COMMUNICATION

Editor of The Nugget:— It is regrettable, to say the least, to ouserve the attitude taken by certain individuals in Sierra county who seek to belittle the mining bill which was passed by the last legislature only to be vetoed later by the governor.

No matter what these four or five individuals may have thought about the merits of the bill, they chose a time to publish their plaint which marks it only too plainly as a move for political favors either received or promised.

It has been the hope of many who have become members of the Hydraulic Miners Association of California that this body could be kept free from factional politics. That is what caused the demise of the old association.

It was hoped that all members would join in an effort to real constructive work toward the resumption of this important industry.

These men say that in asking for this appropriation of $200,000 we were putting the "cart before the horse". I don't know what kind of reasoning they use, but it seems to me, by the most logical reasoning, that the very first requisite in asking for the revival of hydraulic mining, is to find out where suitable sites are for the restraining of debris and to determine their cost and capacity. This is information without which it would be utterly useless to discuss the question; and this is just the information this $200,00 was to be appropriated for.

We also note the solicitous plaint that this appropriation would be a waste of the peoples money. This statement makes us almost weep because it would be just too bad, wouldn't it, to have the poor miners waste $200,000 of the peoples money?

The poor miner gets but little play for his money these days. He gets but scant attention politically or in matters of legislation—except to be legislated against.

For this, no one is to blame more than himself because it seems that no matter how enthusiastically he may organize, treason in some form generally disrupts the purpose of the organization.

One of the prime reasons for the formation of this association, as these men who signed this wrecking statement well know, is the formation of a member compensation insurance board, to relieve the operator from the usurious rates now charged in California, which are higher than any of the states in the union.

The mine operator now pays from $9.42 to $15.60 monthly on each $100 of salary paid to miners. In other words he starts out on a prospective development saddled with what would be considered a good dividend from the mine—10 to 15 per cent.

The investigating body appointed by the association estimated that they could cut the cost of insurance to about $3.50, where it properly belongs. This is worth striving for as an aid to mining, if we expect to interest capital, is it not?

Some of the aggrieved members from Sierra county were present in Jim Stewart's office at Auburn a few weeks ago, when at least a hundred mining men were present at an enthusiastic meeting. Why didn't they make their plaint known then? That was the place and the opportunity to do so.

It seems hard to realize that in both Grass Valley and Nevada City the voters, instead of unanimously supporting a man like Jerry Seawell, who has proven his worth as a friend of the mining industry, cast twenty five percent of their vote for an unknown candidate who was sent in here to beat him.

Worse than that, they cast seventy per cent of their vote for a governor who made it plain that he was absolutely unfriendly to the mining interests; that he did not take enough interest even to see that the mine inspector did his duty in preventing such loss of life as occurred unnecessarily at the Gwinn Mine recently when four men lost their lives by suffocation because gasoline and other inflammable material had been stored at the mouth of one of the tunnels.

These voters probably forget that if it had not been for our mines our population would probably be reduced to one third of what it is today and that we would find ourselves confronted with a tax rate about 50 per cent higher.

They would find that instead of this period of acitvity that we people of these mining areas are now enjoying, we would be experiencing the slough of employment and gloom that marks the aftermath of the stock speculation now depressing all other industry.

As far as the Sierra County affair is concerned however, it is a safe bet that the article in question did not influence a vote one way or the other at this past election. Its only effect has been to create dissatisfaction. May that dissatisfaction be confined solely to those gentlemen who seem to be dissatisfied.

MINER.

I wish to thank my friends of Nevada County for their loyalty at Tuesday's election, and assure you that I shall continue to serve you for the next four years to the best of my ability.
